About: Ms. Evans

Question: What advice would you give to students on how to succeed and thrive in middle school and specifically SJMS?

Answer: “My advice is to just relax and open up yourself to new opportunities/experiences. I think I would also say to try to listen to people, not just your teachers but also your fellow students. Get the most out of your time here.”

This was Ms. Evans in middle school!

Question: How have you been a changemaker, life long learner, and/or a community builder?

Answer: “I think with the career that I chose, being the special ed teacher that I’m a changemaker. I think that I’m a lifelong learner because I continue to go to school. I also train General Education teachers how to work with special needs students and use technology as an education device. In addition, I’m a community builder because I have so many general education students in my classroom. They choose it as their elective and I have different students in my classroom every period who are interacting with the special needs students. I think that really builds a nice sense of community.”

Question: What subject in school was most difficult for you, and how did you overcome the difficulty?

Answer: “Math and science were so much more challenging than other subjects. I think I just had to accept that they didn’t come easy to me and that I was going to have to study harder for those and continue to. I had to just understand that my talents lay elsewhere and that is OK! That doesn’t mean to stop trying, but it does mean that you don’t have to drive yourself crazy about it.”
